Victor Rosewa er Submits a Paper Favoring Pub ie Ownership.

LIEUTENANT CAHOON OPPOSES PLAN

Question is Taken Up and Discussed at Some Length by Convention on Municipal Ownership and Public (nership.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26 .- The second day's . session of the National Convention on Municipal Ownership and Public Franchises began today with a discussion on "Municipal Ownership of Ricctric Lighting Plante.

The affirmative was taken by Victor Rosewater, editor of The Omaha Daily Bee, and the negative by Lieutenant Cahoon, secretary of the National Electric Light Association.

In Mr. Rosewater's paper the futility of competition as a regulative force to repress the inevitable tendency of monopoly in electric lighting and to prevent extortionate charges was clearly pointed out. From statistics compiled by the commissloner of labor for the federal government he showed that the financial saving resulting from municipal ownership was substantial and verified by the experience of many American cities. While admitting that the statistics at hand are not all that is desired, the superiority of the municipally owned plants over the private corporations in the matter of cheap and effi-cient service, both to the public and to private consumers of electric lighting, is, supported by all the facts and figures. As to the contention that municipal own-ership would drag the electric lighting service into politics, he asked how the subject could be dragged further into politics than it now is under the system of private franchise grants. In all the disclosures of municipal corruption in various cities Experiments Are Expensive. Today the old electric light companies are heavily capitalized, not from injecting water into their securities but from the fact that they have paid the usual penalty for antering a new field. They paid high prices for the original apparatus. In a short time this had to be replaced by a better grade and this, in turn, has had to be replaced by modern apparatus. What profits were made were promptly paid out in dividends, and nothing was set aside for the replacement of apparatus. Depreciation was never thought of, hence the burden on the electric light plant is much heavier than on any other form or manufacturing plant.

We do not want to stop progress in the electrical fields and fall behind the world which we are now leading. We want, on the other hand, to progress and to do everything possible to reach the maximum of economy in production and discribition of electricity, so that its price may be reduced to a point where even the smallest storekeeper and the poorest family can afford to use it. Such a result can be accomplished only by leaving this in the hands of private companies and by the municipality helping the electric light plant in every way possible.

Question is One of Cost.

Question is One of Cost.

I think the great trend of all arguments on the municipal ownership question in the past has been along the lines as to whether the municipal plant can be operated so as to furnish lights for a city at a less cost than the existing company can furnish them. I say frankly that the municipal plant cannot furnish light at as low a cost, all things considered, as the city can obtain from the local private company. The day of secrecy in the matter of accounting by electric light companies has gone by and there is not a single modern, inp-to-date plant in the United States which is not ready and willing to show the municipality just what it costs to furnish them street lights.

Here is a comparatively new industry in process of development. Do the people of the United States want to encourage it or throttle it? I believe that when people come to look upon it in this light the consensus of opinion will be strongly in favor of helping the fidustry in every reasonable way. If I am right in my belief, then the question of municipal ownership of electric light plants disappears.

The discussion which followed was participated in by Edward E. Elliott, city elec-

Cause of Municipal Plants. Alton D. Adams of Boston spoke on Cause and Results of Municipal Gas He said in part:

He said in part:

At obligation of gas companies is to avoid the issue of securities that operate as a swindle on the investing public. In some states this obligation is fixed by statutes which require the stock and bonds of gas companies to be fully paid at their face value in cash or property at an honest valuation.

In other states the duty is simply a moral one, the law leaving issues of gas securities to be limited by the scrupies of promoters of the credulity of investors. Whatever the law may be in any state, there is a growing public opinion that gas companies should limit their issues of stocks and bonds to the fair value of the physical property devoted to the service.

Rates Must Be Reasonable.

The supplying of gas, being a public calling, is subject to the common law rule that rates must be reasonable. Rates for public service are subject to public regula-public service are subject to public regulation.

In Pennsylvania during the census year the gross gas profit that is, the difference between income and all operating expenses except depreciation, was 16 cents a thousand feet; in Michigan, 16 cents; Iowa, 11 cents; New Hampshire, 12 cents; Illinois, 45 cents; New Hampshire, 12 cents; Illinois, 45 cents; Colorado, 56 cents; Oregon, 87 cents; Massachusetts, 37 cents.

The census report shows fifteen municipal gas plants in the United States. They are at a disadvantage as to size in cost of manufacture. The average of municipal gas in the census year was 42 cents a thousand, and for private ownership gas $1.04, in the United States.

Leaving the five largest cities out of consideration, the average price of gas from private plants was $1.34, or 32 cents higher than municipal plants, though these latter had less than half as large an average output.

The discussion was opened by Edward W. Bemis, water commissioner of Cleveland, O.

FAMILY IS BRUTALLY BEATEN

Ten Masked Men Enter Home Near Toledo, Demand Money and

TOLEDO, O., Feb. 26 -Ten masked jobbers went to the home of Christian Joehlin, two miles from the city limits late last night, battered down the doors with clubs and entered the residence, leaving two men outside as guards.

In the house were Mr. and Mrs. Christian Joehlin, John Anderson, oJseph Joehlin, also a 3-year-old boy and an 18-monthsold girl. All, including even the baby boy and girl, were clubbed into insensibility, bound and gagged.

When the Joehlins recovered consciousness the robbers demanded $20,000 which, they said, they knew was secreted in the house. When told that no such amount was there, the bandits applied burning torches to the faces and feet of all their victims, blistering even the infants' little feet. Christian Joehlin, an aged paralytic, was burned so frequently that there is not a spot on his head that is not blistered. The marauders, before leaving their victims, securely tied," searched every corner of the house, secured $300 in cash and several articles of jewelry. They drank considera-tatoes, coffee, wine and other eatables and cooly devoured it. They were in the house four hours, leaving at 4 o'clock this morning after notifying the family that they would return for the $20,000. Every policeman and detective in the city is working on the case. Not even a clue of the intruders whereabouts Sixth Round—Corbett tried for body with both hands, but was blocked. He missed two uppercuts for the face, but Hanlon got back out of harm's way. Corbett put his right to the face and was now doing most of the aggressive work. Eddie drove his right to the face and clinched. Corbett drove Hanlon back with a wicked uppercut. This was Corbett's round and Hanlon lost some of his confidence.

a wicked uppercut. This was Corbett's round and Hanlon lost some of his confidence.

Seventh Round—Corbett sent his right to the jaw and they went into a mixup. Corbett was trying to get in a good blow and had Hanlon guessing. Both men were fighting hard. In a fierce mixup both exchanged severe blows, Hanlon having the best of it. He was raining lefts and rights to Corbett's face when the gong rang.

Eighth Round—Corbett looked much refreshed. A hard right to the body sent the champion back, but he was not to be denied and came back with his famous right uppercut to the jaw. Eddie landed two rights and a left to the jaw in quick succession. Corbett fought back hard. At the conclusion of the round Hanlon sent in two rights to the jaw. Hanlon's round.

Tenth Round—Hanlon kept his face well covered. Hanlon swung twice to the head with left and in a mixup put his right and left hard to the jaw. Corbett clinched to avoid punishment. Corbett was bleeding badly, but fought back gamely. Hanlon was making a chopping block out of the champion and the latter was practically hopeless. The gong saved Corbett, who was on his last legs. Hanlon landed fully a dozen blows on Corbett's stomach, but was unable to land a knockout. The excitement was so intense that the bell was not heard.

Eleventh Round—Hanlon sailed in and tried to beat his man to the mar.

Eleventh Round-Hanlon sailed in and Eseventh Round—Hanton satised in and tried to beat his man to the mat, but Corbett came back gamely and took a dying man's chance. Hanton forced the champion around the ring. Hanton got careless and left an opening. Corbett sent in a straight left to the face! but his blows were weak. Corbett nursed himself carefully in this round and let Hanton do all the fighting.

Twelfth Round--Corbett sent in two victous rights to the stomach and then followed with another to the same place. He planted his right hard again to the body and had recovered his steam apparently. Hanlon was not so fresh. This was Corbett's round. bett's round.

Thirteenth Round—As the bell sounded Corbett sent in a stiff right to the face.

Fourteenth Round—Corbett went in at once with right to head. He tried left for the same place, but was blocked. Corbett planted his right twice to the face and then jarred Hanlon with three hard rights and lefts to the same place. Hanlon came back like a flend and as the bell sounded nearly put the champion out of business by a succession of rights and lefts to the face. Hanlon's right eye is badly cut and bleeding profusely. It was anybody's fight in this round.

Fifteenth Round—Corbett clinched to avoid punishment. Hanlon swung with

So many were landed on Corbett that it was wonderful how he railied. Hanlon kept up the work until the sound of the song saved the champion from defeat. Nineteenth Round—Corbett, as usual, came up refreshed and sent right to the jaw. Hanlon danced around Corbett, who fought back strongly, but most of his blows lacked force. Hanlon sent the champion back with rights and lefts to the body and the gong was a welcome sound to the champion.

Twentieth Round—Corbett went at it hammer and tongs, but his blows were blocked. Hanlon straightened the champion with hard left to the jaw and followed it up with right to head, and Corbett slipped to the floor. Corbett landed left swing to the head and Hanlon almost slipped to his knees. Corbett fought fast and furious trying vainly to reach the Californian, but Hanlon came back at him and forced him to the ropes.

ROWE BOWLERS' PRESIDENT Congress Elects Officers and Players

Proceed to Knock Down Pins.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. fs.-J. J. Rowe, mayor of Lakewood, a suburb of Cleveland, was elected president of the American Bowling Congress this afternoon by 117 to

From the seventh until the twentieth it was a give-and-take contest, and to the pro-Hanion house present it seemed as if the decision would be his. But Referee Greney thought otherwise.

To the cheering multitude which thronged the ringside it looked, almost from the beginning, as though Corbett must inevitably succumb to the vicious jabs of his lusty opponent. Round after round left him weak and groggy, time after time the gong alone saved him, as it seemed, from absolute defeat. Still weak and bleeding from numberless wounds he steadfastly refused as sistance, walked to his corner unaided and came up again game if none too strong.

Perhaps the most remarkable thing about the fight was the champton's apparently inexhaustible fund of reserve strength. Let the finish of any given round leave him weak as it might, he always managed to turn up again on time able, at least, to give a good account of himself in the suc-the conditions.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

The Maxim & Gay Co. believes it judicious at this stage of its long and useful career to the American racing public to point out to the unsophisticated that there is nothing in common between the methods of the Maxim & Gay Co. and those of the so-called get rich quick turf concerns which recently went to smash and buried their promoters in obloquy. Our methods are strictly honest, are founded on business principles, and have long since been endorsed by the most prominent and influential racing men in the country. We engage the best force of track experts money can bring together and spend as much money as we can consistently to unearth stable secrets. This information we have sold for nearly three years to thousands for $10 per week, and to play this information we invite the public to send us their money. At the New Orleans meeting, for the first time in the history of the company, we invited our friends and the racing public generally to send us their money to bet for them. We never did it before. The necessity for this change arose from the fact that if our experts' selections were not kept secret at New Orleans before the races, the information would prove almost valueless from a betting standpoint. For further reasons in explanation of this statement see terms and conditions below. The Maxim & Gay Co. has a cash capital of fifty thousand dollars, is built on permanent lines and will survive as long as does the American turf. GRAHAM RICE, President.
